Savvy Family of Sites

Where each piece of content should live, where to send traffic, and the workflow that moves one customer across all four brands

Sites covered: SavvyProducer (savvy-producer.vercel.app) · SavvyMarketing (savvy-marketing.io) · SavvyLeads (savvyleads.io) · Voxr.AI (voxr.ai) | Prepared 2026-11-06

1. Summary

All four brands sell to the same person from different angles: an independent life insurance agent, agency owner or call center. Today each site partly sells the same thing (leads and transfers), which splits search traffic, confuses the visitor about where to buy, and leaves no clear path from one brand to the next.

Recommendation in one line: give each site one job, make SavvyLeads the place that takes the order, make SavvyMarketing the place that advises, make SavvyProducer the place that builds trust and teaches, and make Voxr.AI the place that sells automation. Connect them with a shared lead record and a consistent cross-link strip.

Site	One job	Primary visitor	Primary call to action
SavvyLeads savvyleads.io	Storefront: show products and prices, take the order or territory reservation	Agent who already knows they want leads or transfers (cold email, paid ads, search)	Reserve a territory / buy from the map
SavvyMarketing savvy-marketing.io	Advisor: help the visitor figure out what fits, then route them	Agency or call center comparing options, wanting a recommendation	Get advised: book a fit call
SavvyProducer savvy-producer.vercel.app	Authority and growth: Jason's story, coaching and consulting, the ROI calculator and the Savvy chat and voice assistant	Producer who wants to grow income, not just buy a list	Book a strategy call (the assistant already books these)
Voxr.AI voxr.ai	Software: AI calling that works leads fast and books or transfers	Operators: lead sellers, call centers, agencies with a dialer or CRM	Book a Voxr discovery demo

2. What each site says today

This is what I could read. SavvyLeads and SavvyMarketing draw their pages in the browser, so I could only read their titles and descriptions, not the full page text. Treat their rows as partial.

Site	What it presents now

SavvyLeads	"Door knockable insurance leads with full street addresses. Overflow statewide at $1, geo targeted from $7, real time from 40 cents. Reserve a territory or buy from the live map." Sold by state, county or ZIP.
SavvyMarketing	"Live transfers, scrubbed insurance leads and reserved territory for agents and agencies, plus the Voxr AI stack to work them. Get advised on what fits."
SavvyProducer	"Rocket fuel for your agency." Real-time exclusive leads $0.60, aged leads $0.29, live transfers $25, super high-intent transfers $50. ROI calculator (minimum order $750), FAQ, site tour, and the Savvy web chat and voice assistant that capture leads and book calls.
Voxr.AI	AI outbound calling that qualifies and transfers or books. Plans: Growth $397/month (2,000 minutes), Scale $1,497/month (7,500 minutes, white label and reseller program), Enterprise custom. GoHighLevel integration. Case studies for insurance, solar, home services, direct-response TV and lead sellers (one shows live transfers selling at $40 to $75 against $12 to $20 for raw leads).

Per the owner profile in the Savvy assistant's facts: Jason Richter built four companies, SavvyLeads (leads and live transfers), SavvyProducer (consulting, coaching and sales support), SavvyMarketing (visibility and prospect attraction) and Voxr.AI (AI-powered communication and follow-up tools).

> Gaps this exposes
> - Three sites sell the same leads. SavvyLeads, SavvyMarketing and SavvyProducer all lead with leads, transfers or territory. SavvyProducer's stated role is consulting and coaching, but the live site is a lead price page.
> - Prices do not match. SavvyProducer shows $0.60 per real-time lead; SavvyLeads says real time "from 40 cents". SavvyLeads shows $1 statewide overflow and $7 geo targeted; SavvyProducer shows aged leads at $0.29. I cannot tell from the sites which are current. Pick one price book before sending any more traffic.
> - Two sites are hard for search engines to read. SavvyLeads and SavvyMarketing ship an empty page shell and fill it in with JavaScript. Search engines can render that, but slowly and less reliably than static pages. Pre-render the key pages.

3. Where each kind of content should live

Rule: a piece of content has one home. Other sites link to it or show a short teaser, never a second copy (duplicate pages compete with each other in search).

Content	Home	Why, and what the other sites do
Product catalog, prices, territory map, checkout or reservation	SavvyLeads	It is the transactional site and the destination of the cold email campaign. Other sites show a one-line price teaser and link here.

State, county and ZIP pages ("life insurance leads in Kentucky")	SavvyLeads	Search traffic with buying intent. One page per territory, each with its own title and a canonical URL.
Leads vs transfers explainer and "which fits my agency" quiz	SavvyMarketing	This is the advising job. The quiz output is a recommendation plus a booked call, not a price list.
Consent certificates, data quality and compliance explainer	SavvyMarketing	Trust content that answers the buyer's biggest worry. SavvyLeads and SavvyProducer link to it.
Jason's story, speaking, testimonials, coaching and consulting offers	SavvyProducer	The authority site. People buy coaching from a person, so keep the biography and proof here.
ROI calculator	SavvyProducer	Already built there. Link to it from SavvyLeads product pages ("see what this could return").
Savvy chat and voice assistant	SavvyProducer first, then SavvyLeads	Same assistant, same lead record. Add it to SavvyLeads once the voice call is proven; give it the site name so it can say which brand the visitor came from.
Software features, pricing, integrations, demos, case studies for operators	Voxr.AI	Different buyer and a monthly subscription. Keep it separate; do not mix subscription pricing with per-lead pricing on the other sites.
"Work these leads faster" speed-to-lead content	Voxr.AI, teased on SavvyLeads	The natural next purchase after buying leads. A short block on SavvyLeads checkout and receipts links to Voxr.
Reseller and white-label program	Voxr.AI	Its Scale plan includes both. Pitch it to lead sellers, who are also SavvyLeads' peers.
Blog, video clips, conference content	SavvyMarketing	Its role is visibility and prospect attraction. Publish here, share on LinkedIn and Jason's channels, and link to the product pages.

Pages that need a decision. The current SavvyProducer page is mostly a lead and price page. Two options: (a) keep it as the consult-led conversion page and move the full price list to SavvyLeads, leaving only a summary and link; or (b) rebuild it around coaching and consulting. I recommend (a) for now because it keeps the assistant, calculator and booking flow working while the other sites are tidied.

4. Where to drive traffic, by source

Traffic source	Send it to	Reason and handling
Cold email (Savvy Leads outreach; sending domains svmktg.net and svprod.org)	savvyleads.io	Matches the outreach brand and the plan to redirect the sending domains there. The plan is plain-text email with no link tracking, so measure by giving each sequence its own landing path (for example /start/ky) or by counting replies and booked calls. Include the mailing address and an opt-out line in every email.
Paid search and social ads	SavvyLeads territory pages	High buying intent; match the ad's state or product to the landing page.
Organic search for product terms	SavvyLeads	Territory and product pages. Keep SavvyMarketing and SavvyProducer from competing for the same terms.
Organic search for guidance terms ("live transfers vs leads", "is exclusive really exclusive")	SavvyMarketing	Informational content that then routes to a fit call or to SavvyLeads.
Jason's LinkedIn, conference talks, podcasts, referrals	SavvyProducer	Trust-led traffic. Offer a strategy call and the ROI calculator.
Operator audience (lead sellers, call centers, agencies with dialers)	voxr.ai	LinkedIn, partner and reseller channels, case-study content. Book a discovery demo.
Existing SavvyLeads customers	voxr.ai and SavvyProducer	Highest-converting cross-sell: they already own the leads, so offer faster follow-up (Voxr) or coaching (SavvyProducer) by email after purchase.
Voxr customers who sell leads	savvyleads.io	Lead sellers can use a supply source or a wholesale relationship; confirm this fits the business before promoting it.

5. The customer workflow

1 Attract
Cold email, ads, search, Jason's content

2 Land
The site that matches the intent (see section 4)

3 Qualify
Savvy assistant, calculator or fit quiz; lead saved with its source site

4 Convert
Order or territory (SavvyLeads) or booked call

→

5 Expand
Cross-sell to the next brand by trigger

Routing by visitor type

Visitor	Lands on	Path
Producer or small agency that wants leads	savvyleads.io	Pick a territory and product, see the ROI link, order. After purchase: email with a Voxr speed-to-lead offer and a SavvyProducer strategy call.
Agency or call center unsure what fits	savvy-marketing.io	Fit quiz or the assistant, then a booked advice call. The call recommends a mix of leads, transfers and Voxr, and the order goes through SavvyLeads.
Producer who wants to grow past a plateau	SavvyProducer	Story, calculator, assistant, strategy call. Recommended offer: coaching plus a starter lead or transfer order.
Lead seller, call center or operator	voxr.ai	Case study, pricing, discovery demo. Cross-sell: premium transfers and the reseller program.

Cross-sell triggers

Trigger	From → To	Offer
First lead or transfer order placed	SavvyLeads → Voxr.AI	"Reach every lead within 60 seconds." Voxr's own case study shows eight touches per lead against two or three by hand.
Booked strategy call or calculator used with a high commission figure	SavvyProducer → SavvyLeads	A starter order sized by the calculator (the minimum order is $750).
Fit call outcome: wants volume transfers	SavvyMarketing → SavvyLeads and Voxr	Transfers plus the software to handle overflow and callbacks.
Voxr demo from a lead seller	Voxr.AI → SavvyLeads	Territory supply or the reseller route.
Customer at 60 to 90 days with steady orders	SavvyLeads → SavvyProducer	Coaching or consulting to improve close rate on the leads already bought.
No order after a booked call	Any → SavvyMarketing	Nurture with the educational content; re-offer a fit call.

6. Make the four sites feel like one family

- Shared strip. One consistent footer block on every site: "The Savvy family" with the four brands and a one-line description each. This is the cheapest cross-link and costs nothing in design.
- Shared lead record. Use one customer record system. Every lead gets two fields: which site it came from and which product it was interested in. Add a tag for each brand the person has touched. That is what lets a follow-up say "since you bought leads on SavvyLeads...".

- One assistant, site-aware. The Savvy chat and voice assistant already captures leads and books calls. Reuse it on SavvyLeads, passing the site name so the saved lead shows its source.
- One price book. Decide the single source of prices and publish it from SavvyLeads. Other sites reference it.
- Search hygiene. Each page has one canonical URL; no near-duplicate pages across brands; pre-render the two JavaScript-drawn sites.
- Contact details. Keep the same company address and opt-out wording across sites (also required for cold email).

7. What to measure

Measure	Where it comes from
Visits and booked calls by source and by landing site	Source field on each lead, plus each cold-email sequence's own landing path
Cold email: reply rate, booked calls, bounce rate (under 2 to 3 percent) and complaint rate (under 0.1 percent)	Smartlead
Site to site movement (a SavvyLeads buyer who books a Voxr demo)	Brand tags on the customer record
Cross-sell rate by trigger in section 5	Count of customers who got each offer and bought
Revenue per customer across brands	Orders on SavvyLeads, subscriptions on Voxr, coaching on SavvyProducer

8. Rollout order

1. Reconcile prices and the product list (one price book). This blocks everything else.
2. Add the family strip and cross-links to all four footers.
3. Move the full price catalog to SavvyLeads and trim the SavvyProducer page to a summary plus the calculator and assistant.
4. Add the source field and brand tags to the lead capture used by the assistant, then add the assistant to SavvyLeads.
5. Set up the post-purchase and post-call emails for the triggers in section 5.
6. Build the fit quiz on SavvyMarketing and pre-render the two JavaScript-drawn sites.
7. Launch cold email to savvyleads.io with per-sequence landing paths, then review after the pilot gate.

9. What I could not verify, and decisions for you

- No traffic or conversion data. I had no analytics, so this is a structure recommendation, not a data-driven one. Weeks of the measurements in section 7 should confirm or change the routing.
- SavvyLeads and SavvyMarketing page text was not fully readable (see section 2). I would re-check their actual sections before moving content.
- Which prices are current (section 2).
- How the brands relate legally and in practice: for example whether Voxr customers may buy SavvyLeads supply, and whether leads sold on SavvyLeads can be worked by Voxr calls under each product's consent terms. Confirm with whoever handles compliance before promoting either cross-sell.
- SavvyProducer's role: keep the lead-focused page for now (my recommendation) or rebuild around coaching.
- Domain. SavvyProducer is currently served from savvy-producer.vercel.app in my checks; a custom domain would help trust and cold-email replies.
- Results from leads, transfers and software depend on the buyer's follow-up; keep the "no guarantee" language on all four sites.
